Proposed programme of work for the biennium 2016-2017Summary

The proposed programme of work of the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA) for the biennium 2016-2017, was prepared on the basis of programme 19 on economic and social development in Western Asia, of the United Nations strategic framework for the same period. It presents the proposed outputs to be delivered by each of the seven subprogrammes under programme 19 and the pertaining strategy, expected accomplishments, indicators of achievement and external factors.

This document does not provide information on resource requirements, as only the Secretary-General of the United Nations can issue such information in his proposed programme budget, which will be reviewed by the relevant United Nations intergovernmental bodies before being approved by the General Assembly.

To ensure that the ESCWA programme of work, as required by the United Nations, is demand driven and responds to the needs of member States, the ESCWA secretariat is presenting the proposed programme of work to the Executive Committee for consideration. The representatives of member States are invited to review it with a view to adopting it prior to the submission of the proposed programme budget to the General Assembly.

Overall orientation*

19.1 The overall orientation of programme 19, economic and social development in Western Asia, of the United Nations proposed strategic framework for the period 2016-2017 is to foster comprehensive, equitable, integrated and sustainable development through effective economic and social policies and enhanced cooperation among the member States of the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA) and with other countries, paying special consideration to the least developed and conflict-stricken countries. ESCWA is responsible for the implementation of the programme.

19.2 Policy direction for the programme is provided in Economic and Social Council resolutions 1818 (LV) of 9 August 1973 establishing ESCWA, and 1985/69 amending its terms of reference in order to underscore the social functions of the Commission. In addition, in its resolution 269 (XXIV) of 11 May 2006, the Commission requested its Executive Secretary to increase coherence and synergy with other regional United Nations organizations and foster partnerships with them through the lead role of the Commission in the Regional Coordination Mechanism.

19.3 More recently, the outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development, entitled The Future We Want, emphasized that “regional and subregional organizations, including the United Nations regional commissions and their subregional offices, have a significant role to play in promoting a balanced integration of the economic, social and environmental dimensions of sustainable development in their respective regions”.

19.4 Furthermore, the General Assembly of the United Nations, in its resolution 67/226 of 21 December 2012, concerning the quadrennial comprehensive policy review of operational activities for development of the United Nations system, recognized “the contribution of the regional commissions as well as interregional, regional and subregional cooperation to addressing development challenges related to the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals”. It also requested “the regional commissions to further develop their analytical capacities to support country-level development initiatives, at the request of the programme countries, and to support measures for more intensive inter-agency collaboration at the regional and subregional levels”. It urged regional commissions “to prioritize sustainable development initiatives at the country level through, inter alia, more efficient and effective capacity-building, development and implementation of regional agreements and arrangements addressing the regional and subregional dimensions of national development goals and the exchange of information, best practices and lessons learned”.

19.5 As the regional arm of the United Nations, ESCWA will continue to foster economic integration at the subregional and regional levels, to promote the regional implementation of internationally agreed development goals, including the results of the ongoing discussions on the post-2015 development agenda, and to support regional sustainable development by addressing economic, social and environmental policy gaps in its member States.

19.6 Since late 2010, the political landscape of the Arab region has experienced dramatic transformations with the increasing demands for freedom and social justice in some member States. ESCWA will play a crucial and unique role in assisting member States in strengthening their development policies and capacities to achieve equitable growth and development. ESCWA will provide a forum for member States to discuss and share views on economic, social and sustainable development issues in the region.

* The paragraphs under “Overall orientation” are numbered from 19-1 to 19-31, where 19 refers to programme 19 on economic and social development in Western Asia, of the strategic framework of the United Nations for the biennium 2016-2017, and 1 to 31 are the consecutive numbers in that document which contains all the United Nations programmes. This numbering is maintained under the “Strategy” related to each of the seven subprogrammes of ESCWA which are presented in the subsequent sections of this document.

19.7 The mandates resulting from the post-2015 development agenda will have a considerable impact on the work of ESCWA in the biennium 2016-2017.

19.8 To address regional and global priorities shaping up in the post-2015 development agenda, ESCWA engaged in an extensive process of internal consultations for this proposed strategic framework to ensure that it will contribute to its four-year vision (2015-2019).

19.9 ESCWA will focus on equitable and sustainable development in the region. The programme comprises seven interdependent subprogrammes that focus on three strategic pillars serving as mainstays for work on eight priority areas. The strategic framework for the biennium 2016-2017 reflects the activities to be undertaken by ESCWA in a fully integrated manner.

19.10 The three strategic pillars are: inclusive development; regional integration; and good governance and resilience.

19.11 Through its work on inclusive development, ESCWA will focus on three priority areas: social justice; knowledge economy and employment; and sustainable natural resources.

19.12 In the priority area of social justice, ESCWA will develop strategies for development and poverty eradication which are measured not only by growth in economic activity and income, but also by decent employment commensurate with the skills, capacity and aspirations of the population and equal access to, and benefit from, resources based on the principles of equity, including equity across generations. ESCWA will support member States in ensuring that social inclusion and integration guide policy and institutional development, making certain that there is equal access to decision-making processes; to social protection and services including social assistance to provide relief from poverty and deprivation, and social insurance to cushion vulnerable groups against risks; and to information and resources. Special consideration will be given to the needs of least developed countries in the region and the impacts that changes in population dynamics may have on achieving these goals. In the priority area of knowledge economy and employment, ESCWA will pay special attention to promoting the transfer of technology to increase the competitiveness of economies in the region through value-added industrial development, while making effective and efficient use of human and natural resources. Concerning the priority area of sustainable natural resources, ESCWA will promote integrated management to optimize the efficiency and effectiveness of resource consumption through the use of new technologies and innovation, thus maximizing the impact that the use of these resources has on income generation and job creation.

19.13 Under the strategic pillar of regional integration, ESCWA will focus on two priority areas: policy coherence; and agreements and strategies. Although regional integration has the potential to boost production and income and help Arab countries in addressing the twin problems of poverty and unemployment, economic integration among Arab countries lags behind that in other regions.

19.14 The ESCWA secretariat will continue to work closely with the League of Arab States, regional partners and member States to enhance the formulation of intraregional, interregional and international trade policies and agreements aimed at strengthening national capacity and increasing the competitiveness of domestic and regional markets. It will also support the implementation of resolutions of high-level regional forums, mainly the Arab Economic and Social Summits, the completion of the establishment of the Greater Arab Free Trade Area (GAFTA); and the establishment of an Arab customs union and an Arab common market.

19.15 The profound changes taking place in the Arab region and the expansion of global trade have increased the importance of integration as a means to address developmental challenges and contribute to sustainable and balanced regional development.

19.16 Under the priority area of policy coherence, ESCWA will work with member States to improve cross-border infrastructural linkages. It will also encourage member States to participate in efforts to harmonize regional policies in order to take advantage of the added value of regional integration in economic, social and environmental areas. Under the priority area of agreements and strategies, ESCWA will focus on integrated work programmes that help Arab countries to benefit from the synergies arising from regional cooperation. ESCWA will accentuate the role of integration as a driver towards a knowledge economy, while emphasizing the need to ensure equal opportunities for development and an equitable share of the benefits of integration.

19.17 Under the strategic pillar of good governance and resilience, ESCWA will focus on three priority areas: institutional development; participation and citizenship; and resilience to crises and occupation.

19.18 In the priority area of institutional development, ESCWA will focus on the link between development and resilience. Strong institutions are needed to quell ongoing political tensions and conflicts in some countries, and to support democratic transitions in others. ESCWA will endeavour to enhance the capacity of member States to perform government functions and adopt citizen-based practices. In the priority area of participation and citizenship, ESCWA aims to promote good governance, rule of law, accountability, transparency, public participation and social cohesion. It will work to enhance civil society engagement and empowerment and support inclusive participation and gender equality.

19.19 Under the priority area of resilience to crises and occupation, ESCWA will work with member States to reduce the negative impacts of crises and occupation, while identifying the root causes of crises. ESCWA will enhance peacebuilding initiatives, particularly in Arab least developed countries, and will also support member States in developing disaster risk reduction strategies. Enhancing the resilience of member States through efforts to mitigate and adapt to climate change will be an important aspect of the ESCWA programme of work.

19.20 The programme of work will be guided by three cross-cutting issues: partnerships, statistics and gender.

19.21 ESCWA will fulfil the objectives of its strategic pillars while operating in an increasingly complex development environment, marked by political and social instability and economic and environmental vulnerability. ESCWA will continue to expand its network of national, regional and international partners and will collaborate with intergovernmental bodies, United Nations organizations, donors, research institutions, civil society organizations and the private sector to respond to the pressing needs and policy challenges of member States.

19.22 Building on its special relationship with the League of Arab States, ESCWA will support the articulation of regional positions on regional and global issues, and the formulation of a rights-based sustainable development agenda that has social justice at its heart. It will also continue to convene the Regional Coordination Mechanism as a platform for United Nations entities working in the region to discuss regional policy priorities.

19.23 Mobilizing additional financial and in-kind contributions will be important to ensure that ESCWA can disseminate and operationalize the findings and recommendations of its normative work and respond effectively to the requests of its member States. To do so, ESCWA will leverage the results and outputs of its regular programme of work and the strategic partnerships it builds across the region.

19.24 In the cross-cutting area of statistics, ESCWA has taken the lead in establishing partnerships with regional and national statistical organizations, and has pursued coordinated efforts towards improved statistical information.

19.25 The outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development (Rio+20) asserted the need for comparable and reliable statistics on sustainable development. Member States and the relevant bodies of the United Nations system, within their respective mandates, have supported the regional commissions in collecting and compiling official statistics. Member States have also committed to mobilizing financial resources and building the capacity of developing countries to produce statistical data related to the post-2015 development agenda and sustainable development goals.

19.26 As a leader of the Statistics Coordination Taskforce of the Regional Coordination Mechanism, ESCWA will continue to promote the coordination of statistical activities among national statistical offices and international organizations active in the region. ESCWA has put in place an internal coordination mechanism to harmonize the statistical information used in its publications and studies.

19.27 Promoting gender equality and the rights of women is a core element in meeting development objectives. It requires a systematic and comprehensive focus on the different needs of men and women, and their power relations and access to resources throughout all processes.

19.28 ESCWA will assist member States in eliminating gender inequality in policies, strategies, legislations and programmes. Through the provision of technical and advisory services, ESCWA will continue to support national and regional efforts to overcome all forms of discrimination against women, to achieve the advancement of women, and to secure their equal access to resources and participation in decision-making.

19.29 ESCWA is committed to mainstreaming a gender perspective in its entire programme of work. It will continue to be at the forefront in the implementation of the United Nations System-wide Action Plan on Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (SWAP), which was endorsed by the Chief Executives Board for Coordination in October 2006.

19.30 In addition to its analytical and normative work, ESCWA will provide technical cooperation support in line with the articulated needs of its member States, paying particular attention to the needs of the least developed ones, while promoting South-South and triangular cooperation. It will act as a facilitator for the exchange of knowledge and information by providing a forum for networking and multilateral dialogue on regional and global development issues. Lessons derived from evaluation exercises will be consolidated to improve the design and performance of programmes, in view of the commitment of the United Nations to encourage and support evaluation practices to enhance learning and accountability.

19.31 The expected accomplishments and indicators of achievement used below are intended to measure the direct impacts of the work of ESCWA on stakeholders.

Strategy

19.32 The Sustainable Development Policies Division is responsible for the implementation of subprogramme 1. The interrelated and complex challenges and current social and political tensions in the region have created a sense of urgency for concerted efforts to strengthen interlinkages between the economic, social and environmental pillars of sustainable development. Regional challenges include rise in demand for food, water and energy leading to unsustainable use of resources and food insecurity; unsustainable production and consumption patterns; inefficient energy use in key productive and consuming sectors; as well as climate change and its impact on natural resources.

19.33 ESCWA will support member States to move towards a more sustainable development path by: implementing and following up on the outcomes of major United Nations summits; strengthening capacities to formulate and implement policies, strategies and plans; advocating the integration of policies on water, energy and food; facilitating regional cooperation and coordination for greater food, water and energy security; and developing mechanisms for coordinated responses to climate change and other natural crises.

19.34 In implementing subprogramme 1, ESCWA will:

(a) Advocate for and raise awareness of regional and global commitments, particularly the sustainable development-related goals, the "Sustainable Energy for All" initiative, and the Arab strategies and action plans for the integrated management of resources, climate change and disaster risk reduction;

(b) Serve as a forum for promoting multisectoral policy dialogue on sustainable development issues and priorities towards forging regional positions and perspectives based on the exchange of information, lessons learned and good practice;

(c) Support member States in their efforts to improve the efficient use of natural resources by analyzing performance in these sectors, providing policy recommendations, promoting the application of appropriate green technologies, and encouraging the integrated management of resources;

(d) Facilitate regional cooperation and coordination as a means to enhance food, water and energy security and alleviate poverty in rural areas;

(e) Support the development of national or regional mechanisms, networks or help desks for the integration of the different pillars of sustainable development;

(f) Foster regional approaches on climate change adaptation and mitigation by supporting the development of mechanisms to deal with climate change impacts, conduct impact and vulnerability assessments, and examine associated socioeconomic and environmental issues to inform policymaking processes and support member States in their negotiations.

19.35 This will be achieved through servicing intergovernmental bodies; conducting high quality policy-oriented research and analytical work on the science-policy interface; organizing high-level and expert group meetings; providing advisory services; implementing field projects; supporting dedicated knowledge platforms for professionals; and issuing technical materials to enhance the capacity to address sustainable development issues and challenges.

19.36 Work under the subprogramme will strive to maximize synergies through collaboration with different United Nations agencies, regional commissions and organizations, and participation in the United Nations inter-agency coordination mechanisms on water resources and energy, the United Nations High Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development and the Regional Coordination Mechanism.

External factors

Subprogramme 1 will achieve its objective and expected accomplishments provided that: (a) member States remain committed to giving due priority to sustainable development issues and to adopting appropriate measures for enhancing food, energy and water security; (b) improved political stability is achieved, leading to institutional building and enhanced governance and transparency; (c) line ministries in member States work together on key strategic issues and cooperate in an institutional process; (d) member States are willing to establish mechanisms/platforms at interregional and interministerial levels to cooperate on sustainable development issues and incorporate the sustainable development-related goals currently being negotiated in global, regional and national forums; and (e) no significant shortfalls occur in funding resources.

Strategy

19.37 The Social Development Division is responsible for the implementation of subprogramme 2. During the biennium 2016-2017, ESCWA will build on the experience gained during the previous biennia to advocate the principles of social justice as a guiding framework for public policymaking. Specific attention will be paid to promoting and implementing policies that foster social inclusion and social protection, including social welfare and social security, and address the social dimensions of poverty; mainstreaming key population and human development issues in policymaking, including youth economic and social empowerment and international migration; upholding participatory development and civic engagement; and addressing the social dimension of the post-2015 global development agenda.

19.38 The adoption of equitable, inclusive and consensus-based development policies is central to achieving social justice. In the Arab region, however, most social policies have been geared towards assistance rather than development, and have often failed to address the specific needs of vulnerable groups such as youth, migrants, persons with disabilities, informal workers and the poor. At the same time, little attention has been devoted to the opportunities presented by age-structural changes witnessed across the region. These policy deficits are exacerbated by the absence or weakness of participatory frameworks to fully engage civil society in the decision-making process.

19.39 As a result, despite regional progress on a number of human development indicators, inequality, vulnerability and social exclusion have increased; they have played a considerable role in triggering the popular movements witnessed recently in some Arab countries.

19.40 To address those development deficits, ESCWA will undertake normative analysis to support social policy reform through regional consultations and technical cooperation activities, including advisory services, capacity-building workshops and field projects. ESCWA will continue to act as a regional platform for the exchange of experiences, good practice and lessons learned on key social development areas within and beyond the Arab region. Partnerships and cooperation will be further strengthened with other regional commissions, United Nations entities, regional and international organizations and civil society organizations.

Subprogramme 2 will achieve its objective and expected accomplishments provided that: (a) member States remain committed to achieving social development-related goals in the internationally agreed post-2015 sustainable development goals; (b) member States remain committed to promoting social justice through equitable, inclusive and participatory socioeconomic development; (c) national stakeholders engage in dialogue and build consensus on key policy areas; (d) national stakeholders provide the data and information necessary for ESCWA to conduct its analytical work; (e) extrabudgetary financial resources are commensurate with planned activities; and (f) all member States are able to participate in activities leading to the achievement of the expected accomplishments.

Strategy

19.41 The Economic Development and Integration Division is responsible for the implementation of subprogramme 3. The legislative mandates for this subprogramme are: the 2013 Report of the Secretary-General on global economic governance and development, the Second United Nations Decade for the Eradication of Poverty (2008-2017), the follow-up to the International Conference on Financing for Development, the Monterrey Consensus, the Doha Declaration on Financing for Development, the Integrated Transport System in the Arab Mashreq, and the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council and ESCWA.

19.42 ESCWA will promote equitable growth and sustainability, regional integration and economic governance by supporting member States in reforming economic institutions and developing and implementing policies based on good governance; designing and implementing pro-poor rights- and evidence-based economic plans and policies; working towards creating and improving access to decent and competitive jobs for men and women; fostering policies and implementation mechanisms towards economic policy convergence; and enhancing regional integration.

19.43 The main directives of the subprogramme in the biennium 2016-2017 are the needs and demands of the populations of the region. The primary concern of the Arab region is the promotion of decent employment opportunities in an equitable knowledge economy, based on good governance and poverty eradication.

19.44 Regional integration accompanied by evidence-based planning is highly needed to enhance regional economic development. Efforts will focus on the implementation of intraregional and international agreements on trade and transport, and the establishment of well-coordinated fiscal, investment and monetary policies.

19.45 To achieve the above, ESCWA will develop and use economic analysis and forecasting tools such as macroeconomic models that enable sound policy recommendations; conduct the research needed for the preparation of flagship publications; and provide technical assistance and capacity-building based on the individual needs of member States.

19.46 Work will be carried out in close coordination with relevant stakeholders in member States, particularly governments, development partners, including international financial institutions, civil society organizations and the private sector. Existing and new partnerships with other regional commissions, United Nations agencies, the League of Arab States, regional and international organizations and academic institutions will be strengthened.

External factors

Subprogramme 3 will achieve its objective and expected accomplishments provided that: (a) member States remain committed to increasing subregional and regional cooperation and integration; (b) no significant shortfalls occur in extrabudgetary funding; (c) the political and security situation in member States and the region allows the implementation of the work plan; (d) up-to-date and reliable statistics are made available.

Strategy

19.47 The Technology for Development Division is responsible for the implementation of subprogramme 4. Technology and knowledge play a major role in the move towards a productive knowledge society. Recent technological advancements have modified the principles of economic growth and affected all economic sectors. The capacity of member States to adapt and contribute to ever-accelerating changes in technology and knowledge varies significantly. With the continued monitoring and implementation of activities pertaining to various sustainable development initiatives, such as the outcome document of Rio+20, the World Summit on the Information Society (WSIS), WSIS+10, the ESCWA Regional Plan of Action for Building the Information Society and the Arab Information and Communications Technology Strategy of the League of Arab States, work under the subprogramme will help and guide member States in their transitions towards an information society and a knowledge economy.

19.48 To meet the development needs of member States, ESCWA will conduct analytical studies and offer policy recommendations, convene meetings, provide advisory services and implement development projects in partnership with national and regional stakeholders. The implementation of the subprogramme will enhance regional collaboration and foster partnerships aimed at harnessing research and development in technology, with an emphasis on ICT for socioeconomic development. ESCWA will act as a catalyst for change in national and regional policymaking and will help member States devise results-driven strategies. It will promote the adoption of comprehensive sets of measurement and indicators that will facilitate strategic decision-making and identify priority areas for policy formulation. ESCWA will also rely on feedback from member States and on regional and global benchmarking exercises to assess and revise plans of action, monitor progress and evaluate the impact of technology on national and regional economies. To help the countries of the region take advantage of the opportunities presented by advancements in technology and knowledge, ESCWA will undertake field projects that incorporate a social dimension, seek the active involvement of local communities, pay special attention to the employment needs of young people and advocate the empowerment of women.

19.49 More specifically, ESCWA will leverage technology to smooth the transition of the countries of the region towards knowledge economies and information society. It will focus on enhancing the competitiveness of technological sectors, creating enabling environments, promoting the development of innovative e-services and advocating the adoption and implementation of new trends in e-government, with a special emphasis on open government initiatives. The ESCWA Technology Centre (Amman) will assist production sectors, universities and research centres in member States to acquire the tools and capabilities to adapt and develop suitable technologies that are critical to solving sustainability challenges. To make ICT widely accessible throughout the region, ESCWA will encourage member States to enhance ICT infrastructure, implement a regional telecommunications backbone and reduce the cost of access to broadband and mobile services.

Strategy

19.50 The Statistics Division is responsible for the implementation of subprogramme 5. There is a continued need to improve the quality, relevance, availability and comparability of statistics in the region. Those improvements must be made primarily within the national statistical systems of member States.

19.51 Institutional development for official statistics will remain the first priority to enable member States to produce quality statistics that meet international standards and recommendations. This will include developing the technical capacity and skills needed for the conduct of statistical surveys and censuses, as well as promoting the exchange of knowledge and good practices between member States, by focusing primarily on national accounts; short-term economic statistics; specialized economic statistics; the 2020 round of population and housing censuses; living conditions, income, poverty and employment; civil registration and vital statistics; environment and energy statistics; statistics on science and technology; as well as gender statistics and mainstreaming a gender perspective to all areas of statistics. ESCWA will also work with regional and global partners including the League of Arab States, the Arab Institute for Training and Research in Statistics, the United Nations Statistics Division, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund.

19.52 ESCWA will support member States in improving their institutional setup and legal framework for official statistics in line with the Fundamental Principles of Official Statistics. ESCWA will also assist member States in conducting assessments of national statistical systems aimed at defining strategies for the development of statistics.

19.53 The second priority is the provision of data and analytical services to stakeholders in member States, in partner organizations and within ESCWA. User-needs surveys and satisfaction surveys will be conducted periodically to assess the impact of data disseminated by ESCWA, and adjust the data collection and dissemination programme accordingly. Work under the subprogramme will focus on the collection of national statistical data released by member States.

19.54 The Statistics Division is primarily responsible for the quality of data collected and released by ESCWA, while other divisions at ESCWA continue to collect specific statistical data needed for analysis and studies. Annual data collection plans will be used to coordinate data requests by all divisions of ESCWA.

19.55 The third priority is the regional coordination and harmonization of subject-matter indicators. In cooperation with regional and national statistical institutions, ESCWA will work towards formulating consensus-based agreements and guidelines for the harmonization and comparability of official statistics. Under the auspices of the ESCWA Statistical Committee, this work will be delegated to advisory groups established under specific priority areas. ESCWA will then work with national statistical systems to implement the new methodologies and guidelines developed through these advisory groups.

19.56 To enhance coherence among regional and international statistical agencies, ESCWA will play an active role in the cooperation and coordination initiatives taken by the regional and global statistical systems.

19.57 In order to accomplish the strategy of the subprogramme, ESCWA will act as a centre of excellence and a forum for the exchange of views on statistical issues; provide training at the national, subregional and regional levels; work on data quality assurance, estimation techniques and the implementation of international classifications and recommendations in cooperation with national statistical offices; respond to requests for technical assistance; and assist in the exchange of expertise between member States.

External factors

Subprogramme 5 will achieve its objective and expected accomplishments provided that: (a) there is political acceptance of specific international statistical standards; (b) data from national sources for specific countries/indicators are made available; (c) appropriate technological and publishing tools are available; (d) particular statistical subject-matter areas are not affected by large gaps between more and less statistically advanced countries; and (e) regional and international partners remain committed to a coordinated approach to statistical capacity-building and to collecting and sharing statistical data.

Strategy

19.58 The ESCWA Centre for Women is responsible for the implementation of subprogramme 6. ESCWA will continue to work closely with national machineries for the advancement of women, national stakeholders, relevant United Nations entities, regional organizations and all divisions within ESCWA to address ongoing challenges that undermine women's social rights, their effective economic participation and their meaningful role in decision-making at all levels. Recent political developments in various Arab countries have also indicated the fragile situation of women, prompting the necessity to protect acquired rights while enhancing women's involvement in post-conflict and transitional processes.

19.59 Drawing on established partnerships, previous achievements and the recommendations of the ESCWA Committee on Women, particularly the Kuwait Declaration on the Eradication of Violence against Women 2013, which was adopted by the Committee on Women at its sixth session, and the Strategic Framework for the Implementation of the Cairo Declaration on Arab Women: Women Development Agenda in the Arab Region beyond 2015 (2015-2030), ESCWA will adopt an implementation strategy rooted in a three-pronged approach:

(a) Enhancing synergy and collaboration among member States to respond to the requirements of relevant international instruments and global agreements through regional and sub-regional frameworks, such as joint strategies, platforms, appeals, action plans and declarations. These frameworks will address gender-related regional priorities, including early and forced marriage, female labour migration, women and knowledge society, violence and harmful practices against women, the needs of female refugees, and women in conflict settings. Efforts will be made to promote the sharing of information about these regional frameworks with countries in the region;

(b) Providing support to member States in the design, development and implementation of national strategies, policies and legislations to eliminate gender discrimination in all socioeconomic and political domains. This includes the enhancement of national capacities to address gender-related gaps in the private sphere (child marriage and domestic violence); in the economic sector (access to financial resources, employment opportunities, job discrimination and access to high-level managerial posts); and in the social domain (gender-based violence and stereotypical representation of women and gender roles in the media);

(c) Enhancing women's access to all levels of decision-making processes and their representation in governance structures, especially during times of conflict and occupation. This includes ensuring women's meaningful participation in executive, legislative, parliamentary and judicial bodies.

19.60 ESCWA will utilize available tools of evidence-based research, knowledge-sharing, capacity building, advocacy and networking, and monitoring and evaluation. It will complete high quality deliverables, including in-depth studies, needs and impact assessments, policy briefs, situation analysis reports, training modules and technical materials, in the context of its normative work, technical support and advisory services. ESCWA will continue to foster collaboration between relevant governmental bodies and national and regional stakeholders through the organization of expert group meetings, workshops and thematic conferences, and the commemoration of events relevant to women's rights and gender equality. It will also maintain cooperation with other United Nations entities, regional organizations, national and regional academic institutions and civil society organizations.

External factors

Subprogramme 6 will achieve its objective and expected accomplishments provided that: (a) there is a political will for enhancing the role of national machineries for the advancement of women and strengthening dialogue with civil society; (b) member States take measures to align existing laws, regulations and practices with their commitments to the outcomes of international conventions and conferences on gender equality and the advancement of women; (c) the political situation in the region does not further deteriorate; and (d) current national, regional and international changes in the region do not reverse acquired gains in gender equality leading to a widened inequality gaps.

Strategy

19.61 The Division for Emerging and Conflict-Related Issues is responsible for the implementation of subprogramme 7. The development process in the Arab region has been characterized by limited, poor-quality indicators of governance and socioeconomic development, particularly in countries that are directly or indirectly affected by crises or suffering from foreign occupation.

19.62 The political transformations witnessed in some countries since 2010, however, have indicated a public demand for better governance practices, including transparency, accountability and participation. At the same time, local and regional crises, the ongoing transformations in a number of member States and the continuation of the Israeli occupation have serious repercussions on social and economic development in the region and pose development and institutional challenges for member States.

19.63 Under this subprogramme, ESCWA will strive to ensure that: (a) public institutions develop governance strategies and policies to enhance their performance and service provision abilities, particularly in the countries affected by crises and the least developed ones; (b) member States respond to development challenges associated with political transformations in the region through the formulation of nationally led and owned development strategies and policies; and (c) public institutions develop strategies for the mitigation of the negative direct impacts of crises and the Israeli occupation, as well as their indirect repercussions on development in the region.

19.64 To achieve those goals, ESCWA will identify and promote good governance strategies and policies, monitor trends, identify gaps and adequate interventions, as well as global best practices that will enhance the performance of public institutions, placing them as the vanguard of development, particularly in countries afflicted by crises and the least developed ones. ESCWA will utilize the findings of this work to assist in identifying gaps and developmental priorities, as well as in enhancing implementation mechanisms across different tiers of government.

19.65 ESCWA will also foster policy dialogues with concerned public institutions and experts to define nationally led and owned strategies and encourage participation and citizenship. Through meetings, advisory services, staff missions and research, ESCWA will promote institutional development strategies that aim to strengthen consensus-building mechanisms, including national dialogues and citizenship-based practices.

19.66 In addition, ESCWA will monitor the socioeconomic consequences of crises and of the Israeli occupation of Palestine, and enhance awareness of their negative direct impact on Palestine and their indirect repercussions on the rest of the Arab region. Furthermore, it will support the formulation of resilience strategies that aim to mitigate the impact of crises and the Israeli occupation on human development in Palestine, and other countries that are affected directly or indirectly by occupation.

External factors

Subprogramme 7 will achieve its objective and expected accomplishments provided that: (a) there is no sudden shortfall in funding; (b) the political environment in some member States remains conducive to institutional capacity-building based on good governance practices; and (c) state institutions are not reluctant to introducing participatory approaches in planning processes.
